Summer swimming on the South Bank

Fancy a swim in an outdoor pool this summer? British Gas Pools 4 Schools is bringing a temporary pool to the South Bank near Gabriel's Wharf.

Have a swim in the 12x6 metre pool then relax in a deck chair. There are 2 types of booking you can make:

- a 5-day intensive course with a 60 minute lesson each day Monday to Friday between 10am-1pm
- one-off 1 hour lessons from 1pm-5pm weekdays and 10am-5pm at weekends.

From 3 – 31 August sessions include:

- Beginners aged 5 – 8
- Beginners aged 9 – 15
- Intermediates aged 5-15 who are able to swim 5 metres without the use of armbands etc
- A course for those aged 16+ looking to learn to swim, improve water confidence, develop stroke techniques
- Family lessons for all the family to brush up on their swimming skills and receive advice on how to progress
- Mini Polo lessons based on the fun and excitement of Water

Polo, suitable for children aged 5+ able to swim more than 5 metres

- Aquafun: a fun lesson for those aged 5+ based on structured races and games
- General adult swimming sessions for all abilities

Coin Street Community Builders is hosting the pool on its section of riverside walkway near The London Studios and Gabriels's Wharf. The swimming coaches are from GLL, Coin Street's prospective partner in the proposed leisure centre development on the Doon Street car park site.

This year's outdoor pool follows the success of the temporary Southwark Lido constructed on Union Street last year as part of the London Festival of Architecture. SE1 is still without a permanent public swimming pool.

READER OFFER

Take a National Theatre backstage tour for £1

Most people will know the National Theatre from its concrete exterior, if not from the diverse range of plays performed all year round.

The Backstage Tour is a great way to see the National's three theatres, snoop behind the scenes and see the workshops where many of the sets and props are made.

On the tour, visitors are given a sense of the work taking place, whether they're observing a fight call, a vocal warm up, or discovering a freshly painted set. Those backstage before a performance might just catch a glimpse of a famous actor in costume heading along the dressing room corridor before having the chance to see one of the wonderful War Horse puppets.

The tour lasts 75 minutes and is available three times during the day Monday to Friday, twice on Saturday and once on Sunday. Backstage Tours usually cost £5.90 per person, but in SE1 readers can go for £1 per person in August and September. Quote 'SE1 offer' when booking on 020 7452 3400

This month in brief

Carnaval del Pueblo

Look out for the Latin American carnival procession of 19 floats starting at Elephant & Castle on Sunday 2 August at 12 noon and heading to Burgess Park.

South Bank gardening

Every Thursday until 17 September the Thames Festival will be holding open gardening sessions in the garden of 99 Upper Ground. Everyone is welcome to help grow a selection of salads, herbs and vegetables for the Feast on the Bridge event on 12 September. You can also help by growing a window box at home for display on Southwark Bridge. All of the produce grown will be shared among those who have taken part. Individuals, families and children are all welcome. For more information or to register contact Kitty k.ross@thamesfestival.org or 020 7928 8998

Marchioness anniversary

Southwark Cathedral will be marking the 20th anniversary of the Marchioness disaster on Thursday 20 August. The names of the victims will be read at both Eucharists; in addition, the midday service will be a Requiem Eucharist. Evensong will be sung by the Cathedral's Merbecke Choir. Appropriate music will be selected to remember the victims, their families and friends and survivors as a group at that service.

Potters Fields roller disco

Get your skates on and then put on your dancing shoes to join Little Boots and others at the annual Nokia Skate Almighty roller-disco experience at Potters Fields Park. Held last year on the Hungerford Car Park, the event combines live contemporary music with retro skating and anyone can take part, but free tickets must be secured via www.skatealmighty.nokia.co.uk

People First Expo

This year's North Lambeth People First Expo will be held at Waterloo Action Centre on Saturday 10 October. Local organisations who wish to have a stall or provide entertainment should contact david.fisher@wcdg.org.uk

Tales of old London Bridge

As part of the 800th anniversary of the first stone river crossing at London Bridge and the Festival of British Archaeology the Museum of London Docklands is hosting a series of storytelling events for children on 1 and 2 August. Enjoy an action packed tale and recreate the sights, sounds and movement of the crowded thoroughfare of old London Bridge. The museum is just a short ride away from SE1 on the Jubilee line or the Thames Clippers boat service. www.museumdocklands.org.uk

BFI films on NT flytower

As part of the National Theatre's Watch this Space summer festival there will be a series of Friday night open-air film projections onto the NT flytower this month. The screenings from the BFI archive take place on Fridays 7, 14 and 21 August at 10.15pm. The 14 August programme is devoted to Southwark and Lambeth. Brief City (Jacques Brunius, Maurice Harvey, 1952, 19 mins) is a joyous tribute to the creative vision of the 1951 Festival of Britain. In We Are the Lambeth Boys (Karel Reisz, 1959, 52 mins) members of Alford House, a youth club in Kennington, share their hopes and frustrations. The journey comes full circle in Project 1 (Yohan Forbes, 2009, 7 mins), a skateboarder's odyssey from the Thames Barrier to the South Bank.

Horticultural internship

The Garden Museum has announced a new Horticultural Internship that will provide a recently qualified horticulturalist with a unique opportunity for training and career progression. Closing date is 17 August; details at www.gardenmuseum.org.uk

Foreshore Flashmob

Flash Mob the Foreshore (20-23 August) will see four locations on the Thames in central London selected as needing a clean-up. All are welcome to join in (just bring your wellies) but the locations are being kept secret for now. See www.thames21.org.uk for updates.

DATE AT THE TATE PEREGRINE FALCON WATCH

Daily 12 noon-7pm; free
RSPB volunteers with telescopes and binoculars will bring these amazing birds closer to the public. The star peregrines, Misty and Bert, have successfully fledged three chicks this year, two females and a male. The chicks will soon be learning to fly and look after themselves. The birds perch on the raised brickwork near the top of the Bankside Power Station chimney. They are creatures of habit and spend hours on the chimney, making it an ideal point to watch them. London now has more than a dozen peregrines that have arrived naturally in the city and decided to stay. Not all have successfully bred this year. One new arrival is a female peregrine that has identification rings on her legs. This has allowed the RSPB to track her back to the south coast. She hatched on a traditional cliff-edge nest in May 2007. The RSPB is asking visitors to show their support for our native birds of prey by signing a pledge calling for tougher action against those who continue to illegally persecute them

Saturday 1 August GRITTING THE TUNNEL

Leake Street; 12 noon-5pm
I Knit London is looking for graffiti artists and knitters to come together for an afternoon of 'gritting' (graffiti-knitting) in the Leake Street tunnel below Waterloo Station. IKL wants to bring together graf artists and urban knitters to create some unique work in the tunnel. Graffiti knitting, also called yarnbombing or urban knitting, is the art of leaving knitted pieces in the urban environment - covering bollards and street furniture, or knitting specific pieces as a comment on the landscape. IKL will be using unusual and durable yarns (like cassette tape or electric flex) alongside regular materials and would encourage graf artists to spray the knitting as well as the walls. IKL is looking for graffiti artists, knitters, crocheters, schools, craft groups and anyone else who wants to take part to come along on the day and let their imagination run riot.

TRAVESTIES OF SHAKESPEARE PLAYS

Nancy W Knowles Lecture Theatre;
6pm-7pm; £5 (conc £4)
The Shakespeare Travesty is usually associated with the pantomime tradition of the Victorians, when a popular Shakespeare play – usually Hamlet, Romeo and Juliet, Othello or Richard III – was parodied in rhymed verse with an occasional song interpolated. But the travesty tradition began officially in 1810, when it was created as a literary form, with its parody aimed at the voluminous annotations of the 18th century critical editions of Shakespeare's plays. Curator John Wolfson will trace the development of travesties of Shakespeare from their origin in the 17th century to the height of their popularity 150 years ago.

ENGLAND PEOPLE VERY NICE

Olivier Theatre; In repertory; £10-£30
Tickets: www.inSE1.co.uk/tickets/5832
New play by Richard Bean. Directed by Nicholas Hytner, with a cast including Jamie Beamish, Paul Chequer, Olivia Colman, Rudi Dharmalingam, Sacha Dhawan, Trevor Laird, Elliot Levey, Aaron Neil, Fred Ridgeway, Sophie Stanton and Howard Ward. A riotous journey through four waves of immigration from the 17th century to today. As the French Huguenots, the Irish, the Jews and the Bangladeshis in turn enter the chaotic world of Bethnal Green, each new influx provokes a surge of violent protest over housing, jobs, religion and culture. And the emerging pattern shows that white flight and anxiety over integration are anything but new. Richard Bean's great sweep of a comedy follows a pair of star-crossed lovers amid cutters' mobs, Papiists, Jewish anarchists and radical Islamists across four tempestuous centuries.

TIME AND THE CONWAYS

Lyttelton Theatre; In repertory; £10-£41
Tickets: www.inSE1.co.uk/tickets/5836
Rupert Goold directs J B Priestley's play. The Conways, celebrating Kay's 21st birthday in 1919, seem a golden family - safe and well after the Great War, looking forward to future careers, marriages, and a brave new world. Through J B Priestley's masterly manipulation of time, we see into their future and back again to where the seeds of their downfall were planted. Priestley was fascinated by the study of time. Writing in 1937, he saw how Britain was complacently failing to learn from history and charging headlong towards another conflagration. The first production of a play by Priestley at the National since An Inspector Calls in 1992.

Caryl Churchill's engaging play is a powerful look at human interaction and relationships. The cast is Lindsey Coulson, Ian Hart, Hattie Morahan and Paul Ready; Gareth Machin directs, with design by Naomi Dawson, lighting by Laurie Clayton and sound by Mike Winship. One double bed. Two couples. Three short acts of love-tangled conversation that expertly twist and turn, from existential angst to sci-fi films; from explosive arguments to long silences. Caryl Churchill's plays include Cloud Nine, Top Girls, Serious Money, Light Shining in Buckinghamshire (seen at the National in 1997) and A Number.

THE BLACK ALBUM

Cottesloe Theatre; £10-£31
An Asian kid from Kent goes to college in London and teams up with a sympathetic group of anti-racists. But it's 1989, the year of the fatwa, and as Shahid begins a hedonistic affair with his lecturer, his radical Muslim friends want to steer him away from the decadence of the West. Hanif Kureishi's stage adaptation of his strikingly prescient and acclaimed novel, The Black Album, humorously considers how the events of 1989 have shaped today's world, where fundamentalism battles liberalism.

HOMER - THE ILIAD (1614/16) BY GEORGE CHAMPAN: READ NOT DEAD

Nancy W Knowles Lecture Theatre; 3pm; £8 (conc £5)
George Champan's translation of Homer was published in stages, with the first selection, Seven Books of the Iliads of Homer Prince of Poets appearing in 1598. Shakespeare did not wait for the rest of the books before taking the material he needed for Troilus and Cressida. Faced with Homer's 'wide expanse', John Keats wrote, 'never did I breathe its pure serene | Till I heard Chapman speak out loud and bold.' And speak out loud he will. A scholar will provide an introduction and will link extracts from "the seven books" read by Globe actors. Globe Education began its series of staged readings of plays in 1994. Since then audiences have been able to see and hear over 150 plays written between 1567 and 1642 by Shakespeare's contemporaries. These 'performances with scripts' and dramatic readings are staged by professional actors and directors.

NO WAY OUT (HUIS LOS)

Tue-Sat 7.30pm; £8-£18

Tickets: www.inSE1.co.uk/tickets/7235

By Jean-Paul Sartre in an English version by Frank Hauser. Three strangers. Trapped in a disused bar. No food. No drink. No end. No way out. A man is taken to an empty room. He is joined by two women. Nothing can prepare them for what lies in store. There are no windows or doors - only the faint pulse of distant tango music. Fuelled by desire, jealousy and fear, the three captives make uneasy and shifting alliances, using their memories and their sexuality as weapons of power and torment. Grounded in the blood and sweat of Argentina's brutal Dirty War, director Luke Kernaghan unites a dynamic group of artists and performers to create a bold and breath-taking new look at a beloved classic, intertwined with choreography from Kele Baker (Argentine Tango choreographer for BBC's Strictly Come Dancing).

JASON AND THE ARGONAUTS

Wed, Fri, Sat, Sun 6pm; free

Free open-air theatre next to City Hall. Written by Phil Willmott with lyrics by Kenny Wax and music by Geoff Menzer based on the classic tale. Clamber aboard the mighty ship Argo to join the heroic Prince Jason, plucky princess Medea, Hercules and all the gang for a lively retelling of the greatest adventure story ever told! Our heroes must overcome monsters, tricksters and tempests if they're to capture the mythical golden fleece they need to defeat Jason's evil uncle and win back the kingdom. This ancient legend has enchanted people of all ages inspiring 1950s Hollywood, modern game designers and storytelling down the centuries. This brand new version especially conceived for the Scoop at More London injects a little Brainiac science into the mix too to keep modern kids intrigued and on their toes. Expect all the knockabout comedy, toe-tapping songs, ingenious puppetry and summer fun that make the Steam Industry's free family shows an unmissable teatime treat in The Scoop.

After a sold-out run at the Royal Court last year, The Girlfriend Experience comes to the Young Vic for a strictly limited run this summer. Young Vic Associate Director Joe Hill-Gibbins brings his acclaimed production of Alecky Blyth's verbatim play to the Young Vic's Main House. The entire cast who originally brought the show to vivid life return: Debbie Chazen, Esther Coles, Lu Corfield, Beattie Edney and Alex Lowe. Alecky Blyth's hilarious and eye-opening script consists of edited conversations recorded with prostitutes in an actual brothel. She draws back the net curtains to reveal a very different view of the oldest profession. Worlds away from newspaper stereotypes of streetwalkers hooked on heroin or glamorous belle de jours, she depicts a cosy melee of garden gnomes, PVC, flat-pack furniture, watersports, cuddles and the full Girlfriend Experience.

BOOK REVIEW

Shakespeare on Toast

Ben Crystal • Icon • £7.99
Buy this book at www.inSE1.co.uk/books

Actor Ben Crystal, who has been called 'the Jamie Oliver of Shakespeare', aims to show that the great plays are not boring or incomprehensible.

He reminds us that William Shakespeare invented the word 'assassination'. The failed assassin of Shakespeare's day was Guy Fawkes who lived off Borough High Street near London Bridge. Many much-used phrases including 'setting your teeth on edge', 'not sleeping a wink' and 'playing fast and loose' were introduced on Bankside by Shakespeare who also lived in Southwark and Blackfriars.

The author, who has appeared at the Globe, suggests that going to the theatre in Elizabethan times was like being at a football match today where the audience is neither always seated nor quiet. The cost of being a groundling with no seat was one penny. It's now £5.

Buying a copy of the play was expensive and Ben explains the varying spellings as being due to the printers on the north bank often running out of spare 'e' blocks. It seems that until 1606 agents of another local resident, the Archbishop of Canterbury, licensed the printing. Towards the end of Shakespeare's life the task was taken on by the Master of the Revels.

It is interesting to learn that in 1593 performances were affected by an outbreak of flu. Something else we have today is the jig at the end of each Globe performance. This is a revival of an old tradition which, explains Ben, shows that "if everyone gets up and starts dancing merrily together — hero, villain, dead man and live man — then everything must be okay".

This paperback, as Judi Dench has said, makes Shakespeare accessible to everyone.

BOOK REVIEW

Shakespeare's London: On Five Groats a Day

Richard Tames • Thames & Hudson • £12.95
Buy this book at www.inSE1.co.uk/books

Richard Tames, who has written twenty books on London including Southwark Past, has produced a guide to the capital for a visitor in 1599.

Queen Elizabeth is still on the throne and Shakespeare's Globe has just been moved from Shoreditch to the Bishop of Winchester's garden on Bankside. Although Southwark has many mentions it is described as a 'suburb'.

The who's who section includes several men involved in the theatre who live or work on the south bank such as Ben Jonson, Richard Burbage and Edward Alleyn. Also there is Lady Russell living in Blackfriars who once objected to Burbage wanting to turn his rehearsal rooms into a theatre.

Richard Tames recommends staying not in London but in Southwark which not only has a wide choice of inns but is also handy for the bear baiting on the riverside. There is a warning that disorderly behaviour in the brothels will result in the tourist being locked up in the Clink Prison.

There are special events on St George's Day and May Day but Smithfield's Bartholomew Fair seems to be preferred over Borough's Southwark Fair which has many of the same traders.

The book has some lovely illustrations including woodcuts and other old prints. One shows a common table 'probably in Southwark'.

The colour pictures include one of ferrymen in the Pool of London with the caption: "Watermen conveying a party group to the pleasure district of Bankside on the south side of the River Thames. Fares are controlled by law but a tip may be advisable if you wish to disembark completely dry."
