Borough High Street to host Southwark's civic Remembrance Sunday commemoration

Southwark Council's annual Remembrance Sunday service will be moved to Borough High Street this year after the major fire at the former town hall in Walworth Road made the usual venue unusable.

The service on Sunday 10 November will now be held instead at the war memorial in Borough High Street, joining the local service usually organised by the Cathedrals ward councillors in partnership with both St George the Martyr and Precious Blood churches.

This year local residents will be welcoming the Mayor of Southwark and other dignitaries to their local service, along with residents who would normally attend the Walworth event.

"As the council remembrance service has been left without a home, it will join the Borough service this year," said Cllr Adele Morris.

"I am sure local residents will understand why these changes have been made and will join me in welcoming the Mayor and other officials to the service."

"We had hoped that the restoration of the memorial, which has been allocated Cleaner Greener Safer funding by Borough and Bankside councillors, would be completed by then.

"Unfortunately it has taken a long time to get all the details signed off by English Heritage and so the restoration will take place soon after the service.

"The bayonet, which people may have noticed is missing, is with the council and will be re-attached as part of that work."

• After the Borough High Street service the Mayor of Southwark will travel to Geraldine Mary Harmworth Park to take part in an Act of Remembrance at the Soviet War Memorial.

The Queen and Duke of Edinburgh pictured at the National Theatre last month. On Tuesday 19 November Prince Philip will visit Bankside to open the new Sam Wanamaker Playhouse at Shakespeare's Globe. Two days later he will return to SE1 with the Queen to visit Southwark Cathedral.

EDWARD II

Olivier Theatre; In repertoire;
£12/£24/£34

Joe Hill-Gibbins directs a contemporary take on Christopher Marlowe's magnificent, erotic and violent play. Hot on the heels of his coronation, Edward II recalls his lover Gaveston from exile, lavishing him with titles and riches. Their all-consuming lust makes enemies of the furious barons and bishops, alienates the King's once-devoted Queen and tears England to pieces. Ultimately, the monarch himself is destroyed as are many of those who stood both at his side and in his way. Edward II is a behind-the-scenes exploration of power, sexual obsession and a king who treats the realm as his playground.

HENRY THE FIFTH

Times vary; £16 (conc £13; under-21s £10)

What's the difference between a king and any other man? Kings need crowns and castles to prove their power, and so does Henry the Fifth. So when he starts to run out of money, all he can think about is that his neighbour's castle is bigger than his... A long and terrible war ensues with huge costs on both sides - but that's royalty for you: always squabbling over one thing or another. Belgian writer and theatremaker Ignace Cornelissen's playful re-interpretation of Shakespeare's Henry the Fifth follows his A Winter's Tale, which enjoyed great success at the Unicorn last year. This classic story re-imagined asks young audiences to think twice about the next time they get into an argument and make them question what they're fighting for. THE SCOTTSBORO BOYS

Mon-Sat 7.30pm; Wed & Sat 2.30pm; £10-£35

UK premiere of Kander and Ebb's provocative musical directed by five-time Tony Award winner Susan Stroman. The true story of nine young black men, aged between 12 and 19, travelling on a train through Scottsboro, Alabama, in 1931 in search of a new life. By the end of their journey, their lives had been changed forever by the devastating effect of a single lie. Two white women falsely accused the nine of rape. Even though one of the women later recanted her accusation, and in spite of a total absence of evidence, the boys were convicted. Their subsequent trials and appeals, lasting seven years, deeply divided the nation.
