New Year 2014 fireworks

The London Eye and the South Bank will remain the focus of the capital's New Year celebrations, the Mayor has confirmed.

Mayor of London Boris Johnson last month approved plans to fund the annual firework display at midnight on 1 January for a further three years.

Faced with mounting costs for security and stewarding, City Hall officials considered scaling back the event or holding a ticketed celebration of the New Year but eventually concluded that the current free open-access event at the current location was the best option.

The Greater London Authority claims that 250,000 people gather to watch the fireworks in designated viewing areas between Lambeth and Blackfriars bridges, with a further 300,000 people assembling in the area.

Rambert dance company opens new South Bank HQ

This month dance company Rambert moves to its new purpose-built home on the South Bank.

To celebrate the company will be hosting a series of events connecting people with leading industry professionals and taking them to the heart of the creative process. From Monday 2 to Saturday 14 December, Rambert will be throwing open its doors and inviting the public to explore the company's purpose-built, state-of-the-art facilities where visitors can tour the building, watch rehearsals, observe artists at work and take part in classes.

Workshops will be on offer for people of all ages, experienced dancers and those who are completely new to dance.

Many of the events are already fully booked but some spaces are still available – see www.rambert.org.uk for details

Christmas family theatre

There's plenty of choice for families looking for a seasonal theatre treat this Christmas.

Goat & Monkey, with acclaimed writer Toby Hulse, returns to Southwark Playhouse to present their unique take on the traditional pantomime Jack and the Beanstalk.

Cinderella is the main seasonal show at the Unicorn Theatre in Tooley Street.

On the South Bank The Shed at the National Theatre presents The Elephant: adapted from the popular children's book by Ross Collins, this hour-long show for the whole family features a life-size elephant ghost puppet.

Waterloo East Theatre is hosting Scrooge and Marley, a two-man show based on Dickens' A Christmas Carol.

Local am dram group the Quay Players present Jack and the Beanstalk (set in Bermondsey) at Greenwood Theatre.

Road safety campaigners from SE1 Safe Roads, Boroughbabies and Southwark Living Streets will be holding a 'day of action' on Friday 6 December to put pressure on Transport for London and Southwark Council to install more pelican crossings on Borough High Street.

www.facebook.com/se1saferoadsSalt giveaway

With the coldest winter months approaching, Southwark Council is helping local residents to keep their own pathways and footpaths clear with a free 5kg bag of salt. Council officers will be distributing salt from a van parked outside 105 Tower Bridge Road on Saturday 7 December between 3pm and 4.30pm. Residents are welcome to collect a bag for an elderly neighbour or those unable to salt their own pavement to reduce the risk of ice. Officers will also be providing tips on how to make to make the most of the salt this winter.

Simon Duffin's book is a whistle-stop tour of 110 of the UK's cathedrals and suggests the best place to go for a tea, coffee and cake afterwards. The book focuses on light-hearted, quirky stories linked each building: for the Anglican Cathedral, there's the tale of Bruce 'Two Dogs' Boszum. At Southwark's Roman Catholic Cathedral there are references to the Dalai Lama's visit and that of Pope John Paul II.

IMAGINING SOUTHWARK

Starr Auditorium; 6.30pm-8.30pm; free; booking advised 020 7525 4985 or Daisy.Coleman@southwark.gov.uk

The Mayor of Southwark invites you to an evening of film and discussion. An inspiring and thought-provoking programme of Southwark films, including SODIQ - an award-winning documentary by Peckham's Adeyemi Michael (Grierson Sky Atlantic Best Student Documentary 2013). In 2008 Sodiq Adebayo dreamt of going to university and becoming a doctor. Four years later he was on trial for the murder of Sylvester Akapalara and is today serving a 30-year prison sentence. Director Adeyemi having a unique bond with Sodiq set up a football team on their council estate in Peckham, and made a film in 2008 celebrating Sodiq's dream of studying medicine. At the time he said he didn't want to end up in jail. This new film revisits the past and is all about turning points and the choices we make. Followed by a public conversation with filmmaker Adeyemi, Barry and Margaret Mizen, and His Honour Judge Roger Chapple, the Recorder of Southwark. This is a free event with a voluntary collection for the Mayor of Southwark's Charity Appeal for Evelina London Children's Hospital.

RUTH DUPRÉ: LASHED, CRIMPED AND LAID LOW

Ruth Dupré makes work that is inspired by the power of religious iconography, revealing how objects of ritual quickly become fetishes and idols. The pieces in this show - paintings, ceramics and glass - circle these themes, but in expressing the humour of sex, death, and worship, they also transcend such boundaries. Her work is in the collection of the National Portrait Gallery and the Corning Museum of Glass, New York.
