SE1 supermarket sweep

SAINSBURY'S is to open a supermarket in Stamford Street later this year.

The news was broken as the group announced that its head office will move across the Thames to Holborn Circus where it will occupy the new building on the Mirror site. The move is expected to be completed by the summer with 4,000 staff leaving SE1. Chief Executive Sir Peter Davies, who as Prudential Chairman had an office in Holborn, says that the decision was based on available sites and the speed at which they could move. However, the recently converted Royal Mail parcels sorting office in Union Street will remain in Sainsbury's hands.

The Sainsbury's shop will be a 10,000 sq ft Sainsbury's Central store which, whilst not a superstore, is larger than a Sainsbury's Local found in Victoria and at Paddington Station. Older residents in SE1 recall a Sainsbury's shop in Stamford Street and since its closure over 25 years ago there has been a staff-only supermarket for HQ workers.

J Sainsbury was founded in Drury Lane but has had its head office in Stamford Street since 1890. Earlier a member of the family had been involved in the hat trade around Hatfields which runs south from Stamford Street. The Mad Hatter, once owned by Sainsbury's, is a former hat factory.

Behind is Christ Church which has a stained glass window depicting a Sainsbury's store and shopping trolley.

Shock closure for London Eye

THE LONDON EYE is to come to a halt for four weeks later this month. The closure for inspection and maintenance follows preliminary tests which found that some welds appeared faulty.

All the welds at the joints between each of the wheel's massive steel parts will be tested by ultrasound equipment that can detect faults deep inside the metal.

Until now maintenance work has been carried out during darkness and often after midnight. A spokesperson for sponsors BA says: "We don't feel there is any cause for alarm but the wheel is a unique structure and we have to keep a close eye on it. In a way it is a bit like giving the wheel an annual MOT."

The wheel's Christmas celebrations were launched by Kylie Minogue who said she was delighted "at the great honour". The occasion was marked by a fusillade of fireworks which startled nearby residents unaware of the celebration which coincided with the wheel's passenger count reaching three million. This first full lighting of the structure will continue until Twelfth Night 6 January.

However, Christmas brought two unscheduled events. First a group of 50 Turkish protesters took over two pods and for six hours refused to leave in order to highlight the deaths of 19 political prisoners, sparking calls for a security review. During Christmas week rides were suspended when the wheel was slowed by icy conditions.

The wheel will be shut from Monday 15 January until Friday 9 February. British Airways did not make a public announcement about the safety checks, although the closure was advertised on the Eye's automated telephone booking line.

THE MILLENNIUM GREEN at Waterloo has been officially opened. The ceremony, with MP Kate Hoey cutting the ribbon, had to take place on the wet winter Sunday as funding was conditional on the opening taking place within Millennium year 2000. About 100 people attended the opening and were kept warm with mulled wine served in Café Dante opposite. Konditor & Cook supplied mince pies. The site, in Waterloo Road opposite the Old Vic, is the only Millennium Green in an urban area. All the other 249 are in rural areas.

At Waterloo grass has been laid and trees planted. A water feature being completed will include a marsh to reflect that this was once Lambeth Marsh as recalled by the name of the Lower Marsh market. At the new green's southern tip work has begun on a youth centre which will have electricity generated by solar panels. The Millennium Green programme is run by the Countryside Agency. There will be a second community celebration in the spring.

Globe architect to rebuild Rose in USA

THE ROSE THEATRE is to be rebuilt in America. Jon Greenfield, architect of the Globe reconstruction, has been asked to recreate the smaller Rose Theatre which stood in Park Street during Shakespeare's lifetime.

The £8m project is being commissioned by a theatre group called Shakespeare & Co founded by UK-born actor and director Tina Packer. It is hoped that British craftsmen will be employed either in the British Isles or on site, 80 miles from Boston. One possibility being explored is building the replica in the UK and shipping the sections to the USA.

The original Rose Theatre was built in 1587 and saw the world première of Shakespeare's Henry VI and the performance of three plays by Christopher Marlowe. After the Globe opened almost opposite in 1599 audiences at the Rose declined, leading to closure in 1606. Its remains were discovered in 1989 by Museum of London archaeologists. The Rose Theatre Exhibition opened on the site a decade later in 1999.

- www.shakespeare.org
- Next month Shakespeare's Globe will announce its 2001 season which is expected to include the Comedy of Errors in Japanese. Other highlights include Julian Glover playing King Lear. Mark Rylance will appear in Cymbeline.

Mint Street Park now open

THE NEW MINT STREET PARK has been opened by the Mayor of Southwark. There is a path lit from below and tiered grass with seating. Children helped plant bulbs and scatter coins in the resin around the plaque as it was placed in the ground. Present was Jack Hames of Copyprints who has a view of the garden from his home and remembers when the site was a factory and a garage. The park is yet another achievement for the Bankside Open Spaces Trust which has confirmed Vicky Lawrence's appointment as Director. A community gardener should be in post shortly.

SE1 Snippets

WALKWAY OPEN

The new riverside walk between the Globe and Southwark Bridge is now being completed. The £2.3m cantilevered path on an ecologically-friendly river wall replaces a high concrete wall which blocked the river view. The scheme was initiated in 1995 and the delay in completion caused the path to be closed during last summer's high season.

COUNTY HALL CONFUSION

The GLC annex at the end of Westminster Bridge has now ceased to be a roundabout. The left turn into York Road from the bridge is now blocked by work on a wide pavement which will link the old County Hall site to the round block. Traffic is now two-way around the north, east and south sides of the 1970s block much to the surprise of unsuspecting drivers.

CHANGES IN THE CUT

The Farey Brothers shoe repairers in The Cut has now closed as the brothers prepare for retirement. The original shop was opposite the back entrance to the Tate. Another change in The Cut is the closure of the nearby print shop due to a takeover. A publisher will be moving in shortly. Meanwhile the new Greek Deli restaurant is proving a popular lunch venue.

DOME PARTY AT CUBANA

The dwindling and beleaguered Dome public relations team chose SE1 for its end of project party. The staff invited former colleagues to join them at Cubana in Lower Marsh owned by Sunday Times columnist Phillip Oppenheim who was a Conservative MP when the Major government thought up the idea of the Dome for Millennium Year.

Book Review

Photos for the Future 2

THIS HISTORY CHANNEL book is an attempt to reflect all manner of human behaviour and experiences from every period of the 20th century including the last year 2000. The 500 pictures in Photos for the Future 2 (Sutton £9.99) come almost entirely from family photograph albums. There is strong evidence that the Whitsun weekend (now called Pentecost and no longer a holiday) and May Day (now sometimes a holiday) were important landmarks in the year as late as the 1960s. At the end of that decade beer was still arriving by water at one Thames-side pub. The book is divided into six sections including Childhood, Fashion, Invention, and Year 2000. Entrants are inspired by the new Millennium Bridge, captured in use, and the London Eye which both make more than one appearance.

Three Musketeers at the Young Vic

THE GALLANT and heroic D'Artagnan guides us into this exciting adventure of politics, court intrigue, love, honour, duels, friendships, good versus bad and spectacular fights. The stage is unusual in that it is set out in a cross formation. The costumes are elegantly detailed with hints of A Clockwork Orange and the SAS. The acting and plot would grip anyone but it's the fights so brilliantly choreographed and so dramatic in their intensity that will truly stun. This adaptation gives Dumas' story startling new life. All credit goes to a fine cast, excellent direction, superb choreography and swordplay. A brilliant swashbuckling hit.

The Glass Slipper at the Playhouse

THERE HAVE BEEN some 340 different versions of the Cinderella story and every country has its own. Southwark Playhouse presents The Glass Slipper, set in south London during the reign of George III, The Glass Slipper focusses on Ella Humbleton (Cinderella), - a "Camberwell beauty" - servant to her stepmother and stepsisters. She receives help from the ghost of her mother and goes to the ball, meets her prince and eventually flies off with him. A hugely entertaining production - I simply loved the comic mouse. A tale brimming with comedy and romance that will amuse throughout.

Winter Cheer at Bankside Gallery

THERE IS SOMETHING for everyone's taste at this latest exhibition of works from members of the Royal Watercolour Society and Royal Society of Painter-Printmakers. All items are for sale and the wealth of talent on display makes you wish your pockets were all encompassing. Coming from a screen-printing and printmaking background myself I tended to find these works more appealing but with the numerous creations on show there is truly something for everyone. I was particularly impressed by the works of John Duffin but this aside, the exhibition offers you the opportunity of purchasing a valuable gift for someone special. •See listing on this page

Jazz at Blackfriars Wine Bar

Hidden in an arch just off the Blackfriars Road resides the Blackfriars Wine Bar & Warehouse on Scoresby Street. Inside the decor is tasteful, homely, unpretentious and oozes intimate charm. In this cosy atmosphere you can dine, sample a fine selection of wines from around the world or listen to jazz music provided by the live band. There are various jazz nights that add to the atmosphere of the bar. Last month the enticing music of The Valentinos and the singing was very fine, very cool, and very festive. (The Valentinos will be back again on Thursday 25 January). The Blackfriars Wine Bar & Warehouse is a cosy place to hang out and have an enjoyable evening. Do remember to try the Portuguese beer when you visit.

Old Operating Theatre

The Old Operating Theatre, Museum & Herb Garret near London Bridge is the latest SE1 attraction to relaunch its website. Once you are past the unpromising splash screen, the attractively designed, if graphically-intensive, home page is loaded. The interactive tour of the museum is one of the site's main features, although it refused to load on any of the in SE1 office computers. We were, however, able to access the pages containing brief histories of St Thomas' and Guy's hospitals, as well as a complete inventory of items in the museum collection. The Education section sets out the museum's services for schools and teachers. Unfortunately the Events page was not up-to-date. Future plans for the site include an online shopping facility.

Southwark Festival promotes events throughout the year to entertain, educate or amuse

Working with the community throughout the year

Although it seems that the Festival has only very recently finished, our work does not stop when the banners come down.

Our contact with the community is year round. We are already talking to our partners about this year's events, continuing our fundraising and development activities and beginning new projects.

The first project for 2001 will see artist Clare Stent, who took part in the exhibition City Lines, working with Snowsfield Primary School. Children from Snowsfield will have the opportunity to be real artists working on a project that will include all of the stages a professional artist goes through when completing works of art. Firstly the group will do some research and exploratory exercises. Secondly they will develop their ideas based on what they discover during part one. Thirdly they will make real art works for display in a real gallery. Finally the children will hold an exhibition complete with an exhibition catalogue at a real art gallery, SE1 Gallery on Southwark Bridge Road.

This project is a fantastic example of the benefits of working in partnership with different community groups. Southwark Festival has an ongoing and successful relationship with Workplace Art who run the SE1 Gallery and it is a direct result of this relationship that has enabled us to secure the free use of the space for the children of Snowsfield Primary School to hold their own exhibition. The project is being supported by a grant kindly received from the Cross River Partnership who are particularly keen on supporting new partnership projects that bring local businesses and community organisations together.

The exhibition will open on 10th April 2001 and run for a week, closing on the 17th. The SE1 Gallery is at Workplace Art, 64 Southwark Bridge Road, and is open to the public Monday - Friday, 10am - 5.30pm. Entrance is free.

BANKSIDE TRADERS' ASSOCIATION Update

Grow with BTA in 2001

Businesses in Bankside and Borough who are not yet members of the Bankside Traders' Association are invited to join and qualify to take part in the Annual General Meeting to be held in the Spring.

BTA membership for 2001 costs £40. The Association management group meets regularly and organises a number of events as well monitoring forthcoming changes to the area and business opportunities for members working together. Full details of the next members' event, scheduled for Thursday 15 February, will appear in the February issue of in SE1.

New phone number

The first major change, following the appointment of Alexander Stevenson as Executive Director, is the installation of a dedicated telephone line at the Winchester Street Office. The new number is 020 7407 8830. (The fax number remains 020 7403 7479.)

New email address

The new email address is:

Successful Millennium Year

The Bankside Traders' Association annual end of year lunch attracted large numbers. The very early December date for a 'Christmas Lunch' proved popular with members who tend to extremely busy later in the month. The venue was the Bankside Restaurant which is a BTA member and guests were welcomed by Kelvin Macdonald whose new venture opened late last year.

During the festive meal tribute was paid by Bankside Traders' Association chairman Robert Chappell to Southwark Festival Director Michèle McLusky who nurtured and supported the Association in its early days. Later in the week the Chairman made a presentation from the BTA members to Michèle McLusky at her farewell party hosted by PriceWaterhouseCoopers at their London Bridge offices.

The Association works to represent the interests of traders and small businesses in the Bankside, Borough and London Bridge areas. Membership costs £40 per year. The Association management group meets regularly and organises a number of events during the year.

in BRIEFIT'S THE LINK

The glazed walk between Southwark Cathedral's north side and the new buildings is to be called Lancelot's Link. Bishop of Winchester Lancelot Andrewes lived at Winchester Palace from 1619 to 1626 and is buried at the east end of the cathedral so the indoor street forms a link between his home and tomb. Lancelot's Link is expected to open in May.

SQUARE PLANS

Last month plans for the riverside Cathedral Square were unveiled by Southwark Council for public consultation. Due to concern over costs the early idea of bringing the Thames nearer the cathedral by creating an inlet have been abandoned. The Square lies just outside the boundary of the cathedral's £10m millennium building project which still needs to find £1m for completion.

NO MANCHESTER

Livebait, which began in The Cut, has just opened a branch in Manchester's Albert Square. There are now five Livebait fish restaurants in London including one in Covent Garden. The now famous white tiles were an existing feature of the café which the first Livebait took over in the mid 1990s.

HARRY POTTER HERE

Scenes for the much awaited Harry Potter film have been shot at Waterloo Underground Station. Other locations include Gloucester Cathedral. Kate Blow, the Underground's filming facilities manager, says: "The tube must be one of the most versatile filming locations in the world because of the multitude of moods that can be created."
