Made in Southwark

BANKSIDE IS to be a hub of activity during this month's three week Made in Southwark promotion presented by Southwark Festival.

Art Places, designed to uncover many hidden talents within Bankside, has brought together businesses, Borough-based organisations and artists to showcase the work of the vibrant artistic community. Venues in Borough High Street include the Slug & Lettuce, Stirling Ackroyd, Quinlan's Opticians, HSBC, John Harvard Library, Carducci Shoes and nearby Simply Nico. Also joining in are Feng Sushi in Borough Market, Southwark Cathedral, the Union Theatre and Southwark Playhouse. Restaurants include Champor Champor in Weston Street. Architects Dinwiddie MacLaren in Snowfields are also joining in along with PricewaterhouseCoopers.

Artist and curator Mark Haywood is opening his Bermondsey home for an exhibition of work by internationally known artists who have a connection with Southwark. Visitors will also be able to enjoy the panoramic view across the Festival area from his high level home windows. Meanwhile Tate Modern is promoting a range of gifts and cakes made in Southwark.

A special theme this year is the series of walks highlighting the heritage of Borough and Bankside. Author and historian John Constable will be conducting an evening tour based on the Southwark Mysteries and actors in Chaucer costume will be walking the start of the original pilgrim route to Canterbury before a special show at Southwark Playhouse.

•The full programme, including events in Peckham, can be obtained from Southwark Cathedral, Southwark Information Centre or at www.southwarkfestival.org.uk. Call 020 7403 7400 for further infor

TERROR IN THE USA

... How SE1 responded to the events of 11 September

US attacks bring concern about SE1 skyscrapers

WIDESPREAD CONCERN about erecting new high buildings has been expressed along Bankside following the attack on New York's World Trade Centre.

English Heritage Commissioner and architectural writer Simon Jenkins says: "It is clearly madness now to be erecting icon towers so lightweight as to be impossible to evacuate at speed." He also describes the planned London Bridge Tower, which would be Europe's tallest building, as "most lethal in an accident".

Southwark Council is currently considering an application for a 32 storey riverside tower which would dwarf Tate Modern. Bankside Residents for Appropriate Development (BROAD) has been formed to campaign against the proposed tower and in favour of appropriate development.

Meanwhile a 28 storey tower is also proposed upstream on the Albert Embankment.

The morning after the outrage there was a strong police presence on the riverside at Tate Modern. The gallery's Surrealism exhibition has opened with several key items still in America due to transatlantic transport difficulties.

As a precaution the London Eye was halted and evacuated soon after news of the American disaster was received.

Later in the week many people gathered in Southwark Cathedral to observe the three minute silence and at lunchtime on the same day extra seating had to be brought out for the memorial service. Among those attending were bank employees whose colleagues were missing in New York.

Actress Linda Powell, daughter of US secretary of State Colin Powell, has pulled out of the National Theatre production of Jitney set in America.

Suprise Southwark appearance for Pulp

PULP MADE a surprise live appearance on Bankside when they performed material from the group's forthcoming album to 600 surprised onlookers.

Singer Jarvis Cocker, guitarist Mark Webber and keyboard player Candida Doyle sang from their forthcoming album in a marquee behind Southwark Cathedral.

An eyewitness at the show said that the performance came as a shock. "It looked like he decided to do it on the spur of the moment."

The show was not without its glitches. Halfway through Roadkill the electricity supply to the stage failed.

Free theatre tickets for SE1 residents

THE YOUNG Vic is offering free theatre tickets and ice cream.

"The Young Vic is famous throughout the country and the world – but we are also a local theatre with deep roots" says Artistic Director David Lan. "We believe that everyone who lives in Lambeth and Southwark should visit us at least once in their lives. If they don't like it they never have to come back. But there's a chance - and we're prepared to take it – that this will be the beginning of a life long relationship."

Residents should send their name and addresses to: Two Boroughs, Young Vic, Freepost LON 19016, London SE1 8ZY

Tate Modern artist dies suddenly

TATE MODERN Director Sir Nicholas Serota and his colleagues were shocked by the sudden death last month of sculptor Juan Muñoz at the age of 48. He suffered a stomach haemorrhage while on holiday in Ibiza.

At the time of his death his controversial Double Bind installation was in the Turbine Hall at Tate Modern. The installation's elevators were stopped in memory of the man who had filled the space with the extraordinary multi-layered construction. Double Bind will remain in place until March next year.

book review

Mind the Gap by Simon James

SIMON JAMES' book Mind the Gap (HarperCollins £14.99) is being launched this month at SE1's Tom Blau gallery where there is an exhibition of the author's photographs. He has been to the end of every line on the Underground. Some are deep in the countryside and even outside the Greater London. He has included the recently closed far east end of the Central Line where the track became a single line and ran into buffers under rhododendrons at Ongar. But one line ends in SE1. The end - or beginning-of the Bakerloo Line is at the Elephant & Castle so the author found himself taking pictures in SE1. There is a fine photograph of the ox-blood tiled station frontage in London Road where, we are told, a baby was born in a carriage and called Thelma Ursula Beatrice Eleanor - note the initials.

•You can catch the exhibition at the Tom Blau Gallery until Friday 5 October - see page 5

SE1 Snippets

GOLDEN HINDE

The Golden Hinde may look out of place in St Mary Overie Dock against the modern buildings but it is an authentic replica of Drake's 16th-century ship. The 11-strong crew who sailed across the Atlantic in 1991 have just held a reunion on board. None of them has any desire to repeat the voyage which saw food stocks run low and water seep through the hull.

SOUTHWARK WEDDINGS

During the year to April 14 marriages took place on board the Golden Hinde, something that Drake could not have foreseen. Another ship proving popular for weddings is HMS Belfast where broadcaster and former MP Edwina Currie was married. Southwark's most popular special licence venue remains Dulwich College.

ANTARCTIC ADVENTURES

The Princess Royal, Patron of the UK Antarctic Heritage Trust, is to attend the British première of Shackleton's Antarctic Adventure at the BFI IMAX Cinema on Thursday 18 October. The princess is due to arrive just before 7pm. The film uses original footage and re-enactments to convey the drama of this extraordinary story of survival against all odds.

DISUNITED TRAFFIC SCHEME

After much confusion outside the Union Theatre the one-way traffic system has been abandoned. Traffic going east from the Blackfriars Road junction was forced to turn left into Gambia Street and Scoresby Street to return to Blackfriars Road. Meanwhile the planned narrowing of the road for a cycle lane outside the theatre is also on hold.

Mother Clap's Molly House

SET IN the 18th and 21st century we are drawn into the world of transvestites and rent boys and shown murky relationships between lust and commerce. The death of Mrs Tull's husband catapults her and her wondering apprentice into new money making avenues. She embarks on opening a Molly house (brothel) and switches to renting dresses to men instead of women. This lewd and bawdy black comedy is irreverent and sharp in its utilization of candid and witty dialogue. The set is particularly fine as is the score and superb acting. Although the two periods are disjointed and do not work very well the humour is fresh and electrifying. Provocative dialogue and scenes show a secret London.

Design Light Shop in Kennington Rd

UNUSUAL LIGHTING for the dark winter evenings can be found at the Design Light Shop in Kennington Road. Owner James McFarlane opened his shop in 1993. His lights are stunning but not cheap. My favourite, a modern 'chandelier' of letters in different languages costs £550. A Murano glass lamp is £220. Ordinary mortals will have to stick with downlights from £5 each or take out an overdraft. James also does lighting for private customers and commercial firms. The latter include the Tate and Benbow House flats opposite the Globe. A former resident of Lambeth, James likes the local area because it is "central, near a river and at a crossroads". It suits his shop as well.

Katherina Fritsch at Tate Modern

KATHARINA FRITSCH has opened at Tate Modern. Fables unleash all sorts of mischief. From a world of myth and imagination, figments are fixed in solid form and a ludicrous sort of sculptural reality begins to build. Our nightmare of identity as being random as conception is confirmed when a trestle table unzips 32 identical brethren. Fritsch calls the bluff of THAT THING on the tendrils of fear itself: a ghost, a pool of blood; three figures here to save or ruin us. A huge black mouse sits over his human - drenched white in bed and pinned further by his tidy duvet. Here's the mortality of half a lifetime's withdrawal into the sleep of dreams!

Under the railway arches

The Café Lounge opposite the Union Theatre in Union Street is deceptive. It's on the wrong side of the road for passers-by and from the doorway looks small and narrow. In fact the downstairs is L-shaped and upstairs is a huge high ceiling space with Mackintosh style chairs. The bigger surprise is the rumble of trains overhead but downstairs the rumble could come from the Jubilee Line. A morning coffee Cappuccino and a Portuguese custard tart costs £2.30. The cafe is open for breakfast (£3.80) and a healthy breakfast (£4.20 including yoghurt). The lunchtime attraction is the baguette choice.

Childhood First Challenge

'I PUSHED myself to my physical, mental and emotional limits and emerged refreshed and invigorated by the experience' says Penny Higgins, former Childhood First Challenge participant. Childhood First is a children's charity based in Waterloo Road with centres in and near London caring for some of the most seriously damaged and abused children. A 9-day trek next June in Morocco's spectacular High Atlas mountains is planned to help support these children. Known locally as the 'mountain of mountains', Mount Toubkal is North Africa's highest peak and stands at an imposing 4,167 metres high. The journey will go over the high passes of the Toubkal Massif, snow-capped, rugged peaks alongside lush green valleys and oases, and pass through colourful Berber villages. The culmination of the challenge is scaling Mount Toubkal itself. A final day will be spent exploring Marrakech with its snake-charmers, sword-swallowers and overall air of mystique. Everyone is welcome to take part. All the charity asks is that participants pay a £200 registration fee and raise a minimum sponsorship. The trek can be an excellent form of team-building for a corporate group or equally a great way to meet new friends if you come alone. Many lasting friendships were forged on a past Challenge event and one wedding followed.

in BRIEF

HMS President

HMS President slipped back on a low tide to her permanent berth opposite the Oxo Tower early last month. She may have a new dark blue coat of paint but sadly she never made Hull as intended. The painting was undertaken in West India Dock. She is still due for a full refit by next July so the sea voyage to Hull still looks a strong possibility.

Jerry and Salvador

Jerry Hall visited SE1 last month to launch BT's sponsorship of Tate Online. The deal will bring BT's technical expertise to Tate's online gallery which contains 14,000 images from the Tate collection. "With this online website you will be able to view the gallery in the intimacy of your home which I think is fantastic" said the actress. After posing in front of a work by Salvador Dalí, Jerry revealed that she had been good friends with the painter. "We were friends for about three years. I went to dinner with him and his wife Carla and hung out with him quite a lot. It was fabulous and he was great but as I was 16 and from Texas I didn't realise how famous he was."

Rose closes

The Rose Theatre Exhibition will only be open for pre-booked visits during the winter months. Meanwhile work is starting on a trial dig prior to major excavation.
