Lambeth welcomes Lambeth

The world's 700 Anglican bishops are gathering this month for the Lambeth Conference held every ten years. The main conference sessions will be held in Canterbury but the Conference HQ remains in SE1 and delegates and observers will be visiting Lambeth Palace, Waterloo Road's Partnership House and Southwark Cathedral. •See page 3 and Shop Focus page 5

NHS Open Day at St Thomas'

St Thomas' Hospital is marking the NHS 50th anniversary with an open day on Sunday 5 July from 11am to 2pm. There will be behind the scenes tours and the past will be recalled with a fashion show of nursing uniforms worn since 1948. Also on offer is the chance to have a quick blood pressure check and pick up healthy hints.

Galleries offer art for all

David Hockney who is an enthusiastic supporter Gallery Week in SE1 says "It's a great idea -art for all!". Gallery Week 3 running from the 18 to 26 July is the third annual visual arts event promoted by the National Association for Gallery Education.

The Hayward Gallery is staging drop-in talks and allowing Lambeth residents (with proof of address) to visit the controversial Bruce Nauman exhibition free on Sunday 26 July. Downstream behind Butler's Wharf the Tom Blau Gallery is hoping for an increase in local visitors to its By Association show looking at nuclear locations and featuring live cockroaches. Meanwhile activities at

Otra Tempestad

The Globe has a special place in the hearts of people across the world, and so we now have the rare opportunity to experience Cuba's leading theatre ensemble Teatro Buendía as it explores in Spanish Shakespeare's The Tempest at the Shakespeare's Globe Theatre. The colourful traditions of the Cuba, Latin America and the Caribbean fuse to offer a rich mix of vibrant storytelling, live music and Cuban song with some nudity. This is part of the Globe to Globe series which explores the impact of Shakespeare on other cultures. The Spanish performance will last around 1 hour 40 minutes and London's large Spanish speaking communities are expected to pack in and heighten the atmosphere.

Lambeth Conference

World Church Weekend marking the 1998 Lambeth Conference will be celebrated at Southwark Cathedral on Saturday 11 July.

The day takes the form of a Pacific Day conference with worship and talks and opens at 10.30am with a chance to meet the Archbishop and Bishops of Papua New Guinea over a cup of PNG coffee. Also present will be bishops from Melanesia and the wider Oceania Region. Among the guests expected is the Papua New Guinea Commissioner Sir Kina Bona.

There will be a St Benedict's Day Eucharist at 11.30am and Evensong at 4pm.

Members of the public are welcome. Full details of the day's programme are available from the Papua New Guinea Church Partnership on 928 8681.

- The Lambeth Conference exhibition is being staged a short distance from the cathedral at All Hallows-by-the-Tower on the north bank. The exhibition, open daily except Sunday morning from 7 July, will trace the development of the Conference from a small gathering at Lambeth Palace to its present 700 strong multi-session event on a Canterbury campus. Also highlighted will be the 1300 years of the Christian community and mission in the Pool of London.

Two new hotels in SE1

A Holiday Inn Express has opened on the corner of Southwark Street and Bear Lane. Bed and buffet breakfast costs £79 and conference rooms are available.

Meanwhile the four star London Bridge Hotel in London Bridge Street opens on 2 July. The 120 room hotel, next to London Bridge Station will be aiming at the corporate market in the week but it is expected that the tourist market will be dominating the weekends.

The opening rate for an overnight stay starts at £110 for single occupancy of a double room. Breakfast is £8.95.

The London Bridge Hotel will be opening a restaurant, wine bar and health club later this year.

The Mad Hatter hotel recently opened in Stamford Street and the County Hall complex now includes two hotels.

NHS Hospital Heritage Day

NHS Day Sunday 4 July will be marked at both ends of SE1 which has long been a pioneering centre for medicine.

The NHS 50th Anniversary Lecture at the Old Operating Theatre in St Thomas Street will trace the history of St Thomas' Hospital from its foundation as part of a the monastery attached to Southwark Cathedral. The hospital, was opened about 1106 to help any stranger in case he was Christ in disguise. The name is derived from a later dedication to St Thomas

Book Review

OED's gruesome history

The Oxford English Dictionary might have had an even slower birth but for a terrible incident near Waterloo Station. Simon Winchester's The Surgeon of Crowthorne (Viking £10) takes us to Cornwall Road in the very early morning of Saturday 17 February 1872. We follow George Merrett, a stoker at the Red Lion Brewery (whose the lion remains at the end of Waterloo Bridge), from his cottage home where he has been woken by a neighbour ready for an eight hour shift stoking the fires under the vast vats. In the dark cold morning he turns into Belvedere Road. Just past the lead works near Tenison Street four fatal shots ring out to begin a train of events. A fascinating and gripping true story which will add to SE1's already rich history.

Nightingale Nurses

Such was gratitude for Florence Nightingale's Crimea War work that a public subscription raised the equivalent of £2m before anyone knew how the money would be spent. Comparisons with the Princess of Wales' fund can be made but in the 1850s the heroine was still alive and she suggested a nursing school. The chosen hospital was 'St Thomas' and by 1871 the hospital had opened the world's first non-religious nursing training school.

Eating Out

Pleasant Aroma at the RFH

Very popular at lunchtime when the granary Bacon, Lettuce & Tomato sandwiches (£1.97) featuring crispy bacon and mayonnaise sell out fast. The Cheddar Classic (£1.79) includes grated cheese, iceberg lettuce, celery and spring onion. Cakes from the celebrated Portuguese café Lisboa (95p) also available. But the big attraction is the coffee menu which is as long and tempting as the food. A very French café au lait (£1.19) is even better value as a double in a mug. Free chocolate with every cup.

Music Matters

Breakaway Benefit

The New Renaissance Voices are performing the music of Josquin and Monteverdi with period instruments in St John's Waterloo on Sunday evening 5 July. Directed by Bruce Saunders of Southwark the programme brings together Josquin Despres' Missa Pange Lingua and Claudio Monteverdi's Lamento d'Arianna, Beatus Vir and Dixit Dominus. These famous works are being performed in the recently and beautifully restored Festival of Britain church where the painting by Hans Feibusch - who celebrates his 100th birthday this summer - forms the backdrop. The concert is in aid of the Waterloo Breakaway Charity for Homeless People and admission is by programme (£5; conc £4) at the door.

Church Focus

Christ Church Southwark

The parish of Christ Church Blackfriars Road was formed in 1670. The boundary is the same as the riverside Paris Garden mentioned by Shakespeare in his play Henry VIII as being a disreputable place. The first church sank into the boggy ground and had to be rebuilt. Today's post-war rebuild is much lovelier inside than out. It is the only church with a stained glass window featuring a Sainsbury's shopping trolley. As the new triangular sign boards outside indicate this is also the Ecumenical South London Industrial Mission HQ. Weekday worship includes Prayers for People at Work on Tuesdays at 1.10pm and a Thursday lunchtime Eucharist.
•The main Sunday Eucharist is at 9.30am
