London Bridge Festival

A new arts festival launches this month around London Bridge.

The festival runs from 10 to 25 July and offers two weeks of theatre, comedy and poetry by new and established acts.

The start of the festival coincides with the London Bridge Anniversary Fair on Saturday 11 July which marks 800 years since the opening of the original stone river crossing. See page 3.

Headline comedians at the festival include Marcus Brigstocke, Stephen K Amos, Brendon Burns and Funny Women Awards winners Suzy Bennet and Andi Osho allowing Londoners to catch them before they go to Edinburgh.

There will be music at the Contemporary Urban Centre, poetry at the Golden Hinde, comedy for kids at Pizza Express and much more.

The festival is hosting four competitions and there's still time to get involved.

The 48 hours short film competition asks directors, crew, actors and writers to make a film in two days. They'll be given a title and genre by the festival organisers on 10 July with the challenge of writing, shooting, editing and submitting a short film on 12 July at the Roxy Bar and Screen.

The Genius of Christopher Marlowe

A new 35-minute film opens at the site of the Rose Theatre on Bankside this month to enable visitors to have an idea how Marlowe's plays might have been seen and heard by audiences in the place they were first performed.

The film includes a series of extracts from all of Marlowe plays with a cast including Sir Ian McKellen, Alan Rickman, Henry Goodman, Frances Barber, Shaun Parkes, Joseph Fiennes, Charlie Cox, Kevin McNally, Clive Francis, John Shrapnel, Rebecca Night, Anthony Sher and Harriet Walter, together with the voices of Dame Judi Dench and Derek Jacobi.

The film was conceived by William Dudley, devised by local resident Robert Pennant Jones and directed by Paul Marcus.
