Borough Market tops Totally London poll

BOROUGH MARKET has been voted the top 'Totally London' experience at this year's London Tourism Awards.

Nominations were invited from the public for a favourite London experience and Borough Market was the runaway winner with 43.2% of the total votes and more than twice the number of the nearest contender. BBC London news presenter Emily Maitlis presented the award at Claridge's at a ceremony organised by Visit London, the former London Tourist Board.

Simon Tattersfield, Director of the Market, said: "We are delighted to receive this award, particularly as it represents the people's choice. The combination of high quality British and international food and the atmospheric setting of this ancient London market is proving extremely popular with visitors. The Market is constantly expanding and evolving through our refurbishment works and we look forward to welcoming more people to enjoy the unique experience of shopping here."

Market Trustees chair George Nicholson who collected the award said:

"Since the launch of the retail market in 1999, Borough Market has become celebrated for providing high quality food, much of which is sold straight from the producers. We are grateful to the public who voted for us. Our customers are as essential to the success of the Market as the traders - they help to create the great atmosphere that is the Market."

Bankside Street Action Team was also highly commended in the Local Tourism Initiative category. The Team, launched a year ago, pools the knowledge and expertise of several local organisations in order to tackle environmental problems and reduce crime quickly and effectively. Representatives include Southwark Council's Environment and Leisure department, Better Bankside, Council officers, residents, and local police.

Emily Maitlis, commenting on the award for the Bankside Street Action Team, said: "The judges were very impressed by the tangible improvements that have been made in Bankside, for the benefit of both visitors and residents."

David Blaine to spend 6 weeks above Pool of London

MAGICIAN DAVID Blaine is to be suspended from a crane in a Perspex box at Potters Fields alongside the Pool of London without food for 44 days for his next feat of endurance.

Sky One and Channel 4 are both to screen the event - entitled David Blaine: Above the Below - which begins on Friday 5 September.

He will live in a box, just seven feet by seven feet deep by three feet and plans to stay there for more than six weeks. He will have no food, communication or distractions. His only source of nourishment will be a tube feeding him water and another tube for urination.

Past stunts have included standing on a 100ft high pole in New York for 35 hours and encasing himself in six tons of ice for three days. Blaine, who has a third eye tattooed on his palm, said: "There will be no trickery and no means of escape."

"We are all capable of infinitely more than we believe" he claims. "We are stronger and more resourceful than we know, and we can endure much more than we think we can. In truth, the only restrictions on our capacity to astonish ourselves and each other are imposed by our own minds."

"My next performance will demonstrate these ideas through the most extreme exercise in isolation and physical deprivation ever attempted."

Sky One will show him going into the box live on Friday 5 September at 8pm, with Channel 4 showing the footage three days later at 10pm.

If he stays the course his exit will be shown live on Sky One on Sunday 19 October at 9pm and screened by Channel 4 on Monday 20 October at 10pm.

Sky One will show continuous coverage of the event on its interactive service (press red on Digital Satellite), while Channel 4 will provide a live stream on its website at www.channel4.com/davidblaine

During his time in London, Blaine will also be unleashing his 'street magic' on the British public, in a series of settings including Lambeth and the London Eye. This will air as part of the Above The Below programmes, both screened on Sky One and Channel 4.

GROWTH ISN'T
JUST ADDING INCHES.
IT'S ABOUT
YOUNGSTERS FINDING THEIR FEET.

HERE'S a creative leisure activity that helps 4-16 year olds to grow. Stagecoach teaches the skills they need to act, sing and dance. Before long they begin to stand better, move more freely, express themselves more easily and clearly, grow more poised, self-confident and self-assured.

It is 'work' with a bubbly, like-minded group of friends - no more than 45 to a school. The Rotherhithe Stagecoach runs for three hours at weekends, alongside the school term. There's no audition - enthusiasm is all they need. For a Prospectus call Principal Gordon Mosen at 020 7740 3111.

Southwark now without tourist information centre

THE POOL of London & Southwark Heritage Centre at Hay's Galleria has closed leaving Southwark without a tourist information centre.

Hopes of a last minute offer of assistance from Southwark Council faded causing the closure of the PLASH centre which promoted local history and heritage. It was run by the not for profit charity Southwark Heritage Association.

Southwark Council's

own purpose built Tourist Information Centre at the end of London Bridge was recently closed although it had been officially opened by Tourism Minister Janet Anderson as part of a millennium plan to welcome visitors drawn to Southwark for its art and heritage.

Southwark Council has yet to announce plans for an alternative welcome centre which tourist operators believe could spread visitor numbers between the attractions and increase the time visitors stay and spend in SE1.

Southwark Heritage Association, although now without a shop window, is continuing through its Young Pilgrims to offer an information service to visitors on the streets. The Young Pilgrims Scheme was this year shortlisted for a Visit London tourism award.

Tram service for Borough High Street?

A NEW study commissioned by the Corporation of London supports the introduction of a new cross-London tram service which would serve Borough High Street.

Stage three of the study is now under way, with a more detailed examination of the feasibility of the chosen route. The City Tram would connect with the proposed Cross River Transit (via Waterloo Bridge) at the Elephant & Castle.

Reprieve for Clink museum

THE CLINK Prison Museum in Clink Street has been given a reprieve.

Landlord Chelsfield has granted the museum a 15 year lease. Meanwhile a restaurant will open on the ground floor above the museum which recalls the period when the site was the Clink Prison alongside the kitchens of Winchester Palace.

The Clink has recently been awarded a Southwark Blue Plaque.

Wobbly bridge engineer dies

TONY FITZPATRICK, who solved the Millennium Bridge wobble, has died in a cycling accident in America.

As a director of Arup it fell to him to face the press when the sway was first noticed hours after the bridge's opening. Although not directly involved in the design of the world's slenderist suspension bridge he used his experience working on Hong Kong's high buildings to devise the damping solution which allowed the crossing to reopen nearly two years later.

He had also worked closely with Renzo Piano on the proposed London Bridge Tower.

Sylvia Pankhurst: A Crusading Life

BOROUGH-BASED historian Shirley Harrison has produced the first full biography of Sylvia Pankhurst. Her mother Emmeline and sister Christabel were the suffragette campaigners. Sylvia was well to the left of them refusing to put the struggle on hold even for the First World War.

She had a close relationship with Keir Hardy and made a secret journey to Moscow to meet Lenin. Her unlikely base was a house she shared with an Italian exile in Woodford Green where they ran a teashop. The local MP was Winston Churchill who when a Liberal had been an early pro-suffragist.

When locked out of Westminster Abbey she held a rival service complete with rebel priest. But she was honoured with a State Funeral in far away Addis Ababa thanks to Haile Selassie. The author uses new material to make a highly readable biography.

Prince's Trust Gala at Shakespeare's Globe

PRINCE CHARLES is hosting a fundraising evening at Shakespeare's Globe in support of the Prince's Trust. The event coincides with the completion of a Prince's Trust summer course based at the Oxo Tower.

The gala evening on Monday 1 September is not only a fund-raising event but also a celebration of the commitment shared by the Prince's Trust and Shakespeare's Globe to enable more disadvantaged young people to access the arts. Joseph Fiennes, Gwyneth Paltrow, Diana Rigg, Julian Glover, Jane Lapotaire, Paul Schofield, Desmond Barrit, Sanjeev Bhaskar, Helen Lederer and Michael Pennington are among those who are performing selected scenes from Shakespeare. The English Chamber Orchestra will provide music. The Prince of Wales own guests are expected to include Camilla Parker Bowles.

The best tickets are £300 but groundlings will pay only £20 to enjoy this unique show.

Three pubs reopen this summer

THREE PUBS have been reopened this summer.

The Prince Albert in Colombo Street now has a floral frontage with seats overlooking Christ Church Garden. Since reopening in July Sunday lunch has become a feature.

Food is a major attraction at The Garrison in Bermondsey Street. The new pub was until recently the Honest Cabbage restaurant. The building was for many years the Yorkshire Grey pub. Joint owner Clive Watson says that he and his colleagues chose the new name Garrison as it suggests 'a safe place' and is probably unique as a pub name.

Last month The Garrison was the venue for an unofficial get-together of regular contributors to the forum on our www.London-SE1.co.uk website. Local councillor and Southwark Council leader Nick Stanton also came along.

This month the Anchor & Hope in The Cut reopens after a period as Bar Citrus. The building, on the corner of Hatfields, dates from the 1930s.

exhibition review

Shakespeare in Art at Dulwich Picture Gallery

DULWICH SHARES with Bankside a Shakespeare link. Edward Alleyn, part owner of the Hope Theatre, founded Dulwich College which still holds Shakespeare documents as we can see from the current Shakespeare's Rivals exhibition at the Globe.

Sir John Falstaff lived in SE1 so it is appropriate to see Robert Smirke's painting of Falstaff under Herne's Oak.

Nathaniel Dance shows us Garrick as Richard III. Shakespeare's Henry VIII is set in Blackfriars so it is interesting to see George Henry Harlow's picture of Kemble as Wolsey with Sarah Siddons playing Queen Katharine.

Early Waterloo resident William Blake is well represented and in John Faed's 1850 painting we find Shakespeare and Ben Jonson in The Mermaid across the Thames. So was the Fortune Theatre which the exhibition wrongly claims is in Southwark.

London Open House Days 2003

LONDON OPEN House enables the public to see inside buildings of architectural merit but this year a building which is always open is being included.

Winchester Palace in Clink Street, for centuries home of the Bishop of Winchester, is being highlighted although only part of the great hall survives. Visitors on the Open House trail calling at Southwark Cathedral will be surprised at this gem nearby. The hall is largely 13th-century and Katherine of Aragon dined there before her first wedding.

Winchester Square behind is the palace courtyard and here redevelopment has already been given the go-ahead.

The cathedral was Southwark Priory which had a close relationship with the palace. Bishop Fox, for example, gave the rare screen at the cathedral's east end. Look in the cathedral for a fascinating model showing the cathedral and palace just before the Reformation.

watch*Tibetan Buddhist

CENTRES OF peace and healing are rare to find and the Tibetan Buddhist Centre in Carlisle Lane is indeed a miracle, tucked away down a small lane next to Archbishop's Park.

Sadly after five years of their gentle presence, the centre will have to find new premises by July next year. Their site is to be sold to a developer, no one knows who, but the fact that the centre is next to the proposed £150 million Founder's Place development for St Thomas' Hospital cannot be discounted.

"We are in a state of shock" says Lama Zangmo, Resident Director. "This is a place of healing for the whole community...people love to visit us...London is so hectic now." The Centre is not just for Buddhists. T'Chi and Yoga classes are held there and sessions for herbal and Tibetan medicine.

The beauty and peace of the place has been created from a former school by volunteers. A beautiful garden has been dug out of the playground and a stunning meditation room has been created.

The Buddhists have also been refurbishing a derelict building to turn into a tea-room and gift shop. Now all this hard work could be swept away because of pressure of redevelopment. It is a sickening thought. The irony is that within walking distance of the centre are empty flats and offices which developers are unable to sell or let.

Meanwhile the centre is looking for alternative premises. Please contact 020 7928 5447 or email london@samyee.org if you can help.

It looks as if Phillip Oppenheim, who opened Cubana in Lower Marsh in 1997, might be tempted to return to Parliament. When the former Treasury minister lost his seat in the great Labour victory he wasted no time in setting up his Waterloo venture. Now the Windsor Conservative Association is looking for a Parliamentary candidate. The town has a very good train service from Waterloo.

Another former Tory MP Jeffrey Archer has been spending his money locally during his summer freedom. Apart from enjoying a visit to the National Theatre he was at the gallery@oxo for the opening of In Praise of Women, the show celebrating women's role by Zimbabwean women artists. He purchased the sculpture called Shy Woman.

After Hungerford Bridge's Golden Jubilee walkways needed a spring clean even before the official opening it is good to report that the Millennium Bridge is being well maintained. A team from Dorset has just spent 72 hours deep-cleaning the deck and handrails. The Ferndown-based MDRC Group say they managed the task without using chemicals or making a noise at night. They took away a huge amount of discarded chewing gum.
